TV Tour Is Thrilling

(Continued from page B-1) play or information concerning the other person in the drama. Cameras whirred and signals flashed and the court room became as a real one. With a sheriff, court reporter, defense and prosecuting attorneys, I was swept away to the same feeling I have when I watch the program at home. I was really a friend of the man or woman whichever I felt was treated unjustly at the time.

CONTROL BOOTH At the halfway mark, I came back with a thud when Ted Krec came to remind me that I was now to go to the control booth and watch how the program was put together and directed. As much as I wanted to see this, I hated to leave the courtroom without knowing how everything was going to turn out. Meeting the director Jim Gates was like meeting a friend. He grinned hello and said come in between shouting camera directions through a little mike that went to the earphones of the cameramen. Almost before I knew it, the show was "wrapped up" as Jim Gates said and I was on my way back home. I don't wonder what goes on to make a program life-like any more but I do wonder—when can I visit a television set again! (Editor's note: Francis X. Bushman is to be seen this evening on channel 11 at 8 p.m. in "Divorce Court.")
